

WHAT'S NEXT

STAY: TOKYO

FOUND IN TRANSLATION

Italian hospitality takes root in Tokyo in a finely detailed new Bulgari Hotel for the Japanese capital. The six-level outpost—with a design masterminded here, as at all Bulgari hotels, by ACPV Architects Antonio Citterio and Patricia Viel—includes a restaurant by the brand's mainstay chef Niko Romito, a sprawling spa, a glittering rooftop bar, and more, all right in the heart of the city. —Asad Syrkett bulgarihotels.com

A suite at the Bulgari Hotel in Tokyo.

South African ceramic artist Zizopho Poswa.

SEE: NEW YORK CITY

WOMEN'S WORK

ELLE DECOR A-List designer Lee F. Mindel's Galerie56 will present "iiNtsika zeSizwe (Pillars of the Nation)," a solo exhibition of seven bronze sculptures by the South African artist Zizopho Poswa, on view beginning May 15. In her first U.S. solo show, presented with the design gallery Southern Guild, the artist uses a medium historically reserved for Colonial monuments to celebrate her Xhosa heritage and the women who raised her. —S.S. galerie56.com

EAT: PHILADELPHIA

NEW NORDIC

Rittenhouse Square might be a ways from Stockholm, but a Swedish-inspired bar brings hygge style to the City of Brotherly Love. Designed by ELLE DECOR A-List wiz Ghislaine Viñas with her client, art gallerist Paige West, Andra Hem (the name means "second home" in Swedish) serves up cocktails like Pears for Heirs with dishes like vegan Swedish meatballs and potato pancakes with gravlax. The bi-level lounge has rooms wrapped in custom floral wallpaper, bentwood David Trubridge pendants, and a bold Scandi palette of mustard, peacock blue, and black.

—J.A. andrahem.com

The bar at Andra Hem in Philadelphia, designed by Ghislaine Viñas.